MBR finally on its way

Governor Kasich has indicated that introduction of his MBR is right around the corner and that Representative Jeff McClain (R-Upper Sandusky) will sponsor the bill. The governor said that his state budget director, Tim Keen, would be will testifying in the House next Tuesday on the proposal and that while his MBR will be another thick one, it will probably will be separated quickly into smaller pieces of legislation, and that some of the pieces might be taken up first in the Senate.

Kasich has hinted that his proposals will include reducing the state's top income-tax rate below 5 percent and pumping $10 million into a new program to incorporate businesses and community groups into schools. He is also looking toward reducing some regulatory oversight on businesses routinely found in good standing.

One new area the governor is now mentioning is recommending additional reforms in the area of welfare that, as of yet, have not been talked about. On the subject of welfare reform, Kasich noted in his remarks at the Wayne County Lincoln Day Dinner this week that, “We have created a system that dis-incentivizes people from going to work, and we must fix that.”

Commenting on the MBR process Kasich said, “I think we’ve made the mid-(biennium) review a part of Ohio’s culture, and that’s good.” The governor noted that the MBR is not just a bunch of “things you just slop together,” but that it takes time, a lot of input from the General Assembly to craft the best ways we can work on a whole host of these issues. Representative Ron Amstutz (R-Wooster) echoed those thoughts, telling reporters, “We have a responsibility to vet these proposals. Some proposals are pretty straightforward, but others take quite a bit of work. We’re going to give it that work.”

LGF hold harmless concept placed in bill proposing an additional state income tax credit

HB 408, jointly sponsored by Representatives Barbra Sears (R-Sylvania) and Ron Amstutz (R-Wooster, proposes to authorize a state income tax credit for donations to the permanent endowment fund of an eligible community foundation. The bill received a major “friendly” amendment for local governments in the House Finance Committee last week before the committee voted to recommend the bill for passage by the House.

The amendment, offered by Representative Denise Driehaus (D-Cincinnati), prevents reductions to both the Local Government Fund (LGF) and Public Library Fund (PLF) due to these new state income tax credits being claimed. Driehaus told the committee that estimates put the loss for each fund at $332,000 if the $20 million cap on the credits, which was also amended into the bill, was reached.

The adoption of this amendment is a major recognition by the Legislature that state tax policy that effects state revenue receipts impacts the LGF funding levels. The amendment requires the director of the Office of Budget and Management to reimburse both funds for revenue lost because of the credit.

Negotiations between Republicans and Democrats on the committee lead to the amendment being included in the bill, and the bill was reported by the committee on a bipartisan vote of 25-3.

State revenue receipts doing well

The state took in $1.118 billion in tax revenues during February. This was $31 million, or almost 3%, higher than estimated. Revenue received during the first two-thirds of fiscal year 2014 stands at $13.216 billion in total tax receipts which is $217.3 million, or 1.7%, above projections.

The overage is due to a surge in personal income taxes compared to estimates, as the category registered a $46.5 million overage last month and now stands at a whopping $280.8 million, or 5.4%, over what the administration had expected through the first eight months of the fiscal year. However, these numbers may be tempered by the end of the fiscal year. The major income tax filing season is yet to occur and the state budget director noted caution indicating that the state has to see how the filing season plays out in March and April. There may be a possibility that people are not taking refunds, but they will when they do their annual filing” and thus offset a portion of the overage.

The Commercial Activity Tax saw its strongest month of the fiscal year in February. The CAT has been lagging estimates all through FY 2014. State budget officials suggest that the lag may be due to taxpayers timing of their CAT credits. The law that affected when the credit against the CAT could be taken was changed in the budget bill. The lag may be attributed to taxpayers taking the credit earlier than expected.
